

Editing

I have the final transcript professionally edited into a flowing, highly readable text.

I strongly believe in preserving on the page the authentic 'voice' of the person recording their memoirs. So, their personal memoir is not 'ghost written' by us but instead uses their very own words, to ensure that the narrator's personality can be experienced by the reader through their distinctive language and turn of phrase. I make sure that we edit as little as possible: only for the sake of clarity and structure, and to avoid repetition.
